

Department of Radiology Designated as Chapter of Health for the World

The Department of Radiology has been designated as a chapter member of the non-profit organization Health for the World (H4TW) (<https://www.health4theworld.org>). This organization is dedicated to spread health education worldwide to help stop preventable medical issues.

As an official chapter, residents and staff in Radiology will be able to submit lectures online to H4TW to join an existing virtual library of educational materials available in local languages such as Swahili, Nepali, French, Spanish, Filipino and English. These lectures can be made available to health care givers in 110 countries currently served by H4TW.

The board of directors of the UAMS Department of Radiology chapter is composed of faculty and residents who will coordinate submissions by department members to educate both health care professionals and medical trainees in other countries. Collaborative educational projects between Radiology and other clinical departments will be solicited to highlight the vast diversity of talents, which is one of the main strengths of UAMS.
